Laurence R. Phillips and Rupa G. Singh have been elected partner in the San Diego office of McKenna Long & Aldridge LLP.

"We are proud of this year's exceptionally strong and dedicated class of new partners," said Jeffrey K. Haidet, chairman of McKenna Long & Aldridge. "These men and women reflect the firm's breadth of talent and expertise. They are committed to advancing our strategic goals and exemplify our core value of providing superior service to our clients."

Phillips is a partner in the government contracts practice group. For more than 10 years, Phillips has represented contractors, public entities, real estate developers and manufacturers with respect to issues arising from the procurement, negotiation, interpretation and enforcement of government and private contracts.

Singh is a partner in our litigation practice group. She focuses on representing technology, services and manufacturing companies in complex civil and commercial litigation matters involving contractual, licensing, trade secret, unfair competition, malpractice and intellectual property disputes. Singh leads many national organizations and has received numerous awards for her commitment to the legal community.
